Possible service interruptions on the SuSanA website and forum

Posted by susanaforum - 23 Nov 2012 20:59

Good news, the SuSanA community is continuing to grow rapidly!

New members, new partner organisations, new publications online, new discussions, new posts in the forum, new photos and videos. This has translated into a large increased traffic volume on the SuSanA website and forum.

In order to both accommodate this continuing growth and ensure a good service to the community, the SuSanA website and forum will be moved to a new faster and larger server. Due to the move (migration) process, you may face temporary interruptions in our services during the week of 26 November to 2 December 2012 .

We apologise beforehand for any inconvenience these temporary interruptions may cause, but we are also positive that this upgrade will improve your user experience in the future. Thank you for your understanding and we hope you enjoy the higher speed once we have moved onto the faster server. In urgent cases feel free to contact the SuSanA secretariat at susana[at]giz.de

Kind regards

SuSanA secretariat

==========

Re: Possible service interruptions on the SuSanA website and forum

Posted by tmsinnovation - 26 Nov 2012 18:33

We are back online.

We still have a few test to do to ensure that everything has moved across to the new server safely. If anyone comes across any small bugs or errors on the SuSanA platform in the next few days, please feel free to post them here, so that we can sort them out. Alternatively you may email the SuSanA secretariat at susana[at]giz.de

Congrats to our IT folks in Berlin!

==========